Update on new pager system launch

Last week we shared details of the planned launch of the Trust's new pager system, which was due to take place on Wednesday 25th March.

This launch has now been delayed and will not go ahead as originally planned. A new go live date will be confirmed and shared with colleagues in due course.

...delivering digitally enabled best care for everyone

The introduction of the new pager system remains an important step in improving our communications infrastructure and enhancing the reliability of critical messaging across our sites.

Digital Healthcare Technology and Switchboard will continue preparations in the meantime, and further details on the rollout and switch over process will be shared ahead of the revised launch date.

Thank you for your cooperation, patience and continued support.
