Pressure Ulcer Reduction Improvement Programme launches this week

We are delighted to launch our new Pressure Ulcer Reduction Improvement Programme on Friday 5th June 2026.

Pressure ulcer reduction has been identified as a joint quality priority for 2026/27 and this new Trust-wide initiative aims to bring together colleagues from across acute and community services to strengthen pressure ulcer prevention, share best practice and support continuous improvement in patient care.

The launch event will provide colleagues with the opportunity to:

- Learn more about the programme's aims and priorities
- Hear why pressure ulcer reduction has been identified as a key quality improvement focus
- Discover how teams can get involved and contribute
- Share ideas and experiences from across the organisation
- Connect with colleagues who are passionate about improving patient outcomes

Formal invitations have been shared with key stakeholders directly involved in patient care, quality improvement, education, leadership and service development. However, there will be opportunities for colleagues across the wider organisation to get involved as the programme develops.

The launch event will take place in The Dining Room, Education Centre at Arrowe Park Hospital. Refreshments will be available from 9.15am, with the event beginning at 9.30am.

We look forward to welcoming colleagues as we work together to reduce avoidable pressure ulcers and continue improving the quality and safety of care for our patients.
